

US vs HATE

Living in a home away from home can be tough,
The only way to live, is to think that there is a diamond inside the rough.

At times I ask myself why is there any point of trying to fit in?

When all they see in me is just my white skin.

I am from a people with a past that must never be forgotten,
I continue to push for those who were left to have their bones rotten.

Now is my time to speak about the ugly truths I see in this world,
Before all my ideas and thoughts are thrown in the trash all curled!

You see, we all come from different places,
And that is why we should appreciate all different races!

Why is that so hard?

We learn as kids to treat others how you wanted to be treated.
However, throughout history that rule has always been cheated.

It's too late to rewrite the past story,
However, it is never too late to rebuild relationships back to their glory.

The time to act is now
Because we all don't know when we will take that final bow.

It is important to know for the future!

We are different because of our history and our past
However, that doesn't mean our relationship cannot last.

We are different in the way we act and live
However, that doesn't mean we should not appreciate and give.

Let's experience life appreciating oneself and others

Because we all need one another.